Talking and making choices about alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use are nothing new to teens.

Today's teens are savvy about drug use, making distinctions not only among different drugs and their effects, but also among trial, occasional use, and addiction. They witness many of their peers using drugs – some without obvious or immediate consequences, others whose drug use gets out of control. By now, your teen has had to make tough decisions about whether he would give in to peer pressure and experiment with drugs or go against some peers and stay clean.

All of these experiences – along with messages from you, teachers, friends, the media, and entertainment sources – have guided your teen toward his or her current attitude about drugs. By age 16, kids' exposure to drugs and their attitudes toward the messages
